Semi-Centennial Observance.

Paris Lodge, No. 64, F. & A. M., although not chartered until 1859, was instituted under dispensation, June 18, 1858, and it seemed fitting to the members to observe the occasion in some not too elaborate way. It was decided on the invitation of Mr. Gray a past master of the lodge and for some years its secretary, to make the observance in the form of a picnic at "Gray Birches."

The moss-carpeted grove on Mr. Gray's estate and the grove of the neighbors of the neighboring owners along the shore, made an ideal place for entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray attended to all present as their personal guests, and left nothing undone that could minister to their wants. Capt. F. C. Tibben, whose summer cottage is near by, also opened his house, boat house, billiard hall, etc., and spent the afternoon taking out the picnicers in detachments in his large power launch, which carries twenty or more people, for a ride about the lake, he at the throttle and his daughter, Rena Tribben, at the tiller.

Charles Sewall Penley of army beans fame was the chief of the occasion and opened the bean hot at noon. An hour or more was spent by the groups in the grove, disposing of the beans and coffee and all other good things, topped off with Shurtlett's ice cream.

There were no exercises except a brief abstract of the history of the lodge, read by Silas P. Maxton, one of the oldest members, and a little informal singing.

Bennett Buildings Burned.

The buildings on the Jacob Bennett place were entirely destroyed by fire, Thursday afternoon. These buildings are about a mile and a half north of South Paris village. They were occupied at the time by the family of Guy Fox. There were two barns, a house and a garage. The first one started around the chimney. It was discovered about noon by O. K. Clifford, who was at work on a piece of land he owns near there. He saw the smoke and went to the house. A telephone call was sent to Chief Engineer Bowker at the village, and he immediately started for the place with three or four men, but before they got there the fire had been put out with pails of water by those who had gathered there.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon fire was discovered in the hay in the barn. The only satisfactory explanation of its origin is that it had been smoldering without having been noticed in some of the bedding which was carried out of the house at noon and left outside, and that this started up and sparks from it blew into the open door of the barn and fired the hay. The blaze spread through the buildings almost like lightning, and it was only a few minutes before they were falling in.

The buildings belonged to the heirs of Jacob Bennett and were not insured. The loss is probably $800 to $900. Mr. Fox had had his furniture, a portion of which was destroyed, insured for $300 only a day or two before the fire.

Cole-Page.

Harriet Louise Page and Archibald Louis Cole were united in marriage at Gorham, N. H., Wednesday last week, by Rev. I. P. Oodington. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Page of Buckfield and has been a teacher in Gorham for the past two years. Mr. Cole is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cole of Paris.

After the ceremony as the bride left the room, a shower of confetti covered her. She proceeded, followed by her bridal party, to the opposite parlor where punch and wafers were served by Hazel Baron, Ada Mesger and Elizabeth Beaudette. After a short reception at which Grace L. Wheeler and Winifred McLaughlin acted as waiters, the bride left the room to prepare to go away. The automobile in which they were to leave appeared and the bride's former students decorated it while waiting. As they appeared in the doorway a shower of confetti greeted them. Mr. and Mrs. Cole were taken to Shelburne by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Tidon in the automobile, where they took the train for Portland. After a brief visit to that city and Boston they will reside on Pleasant street in South Paris.

They drove into the field at the side of the road but the horse was scared and threw them out. He cleared himself from the wagon and ran toward the street bridge by W. P. Marston. Mr. and Mrs. Morton were somewhat shaken up but not badly injured.

Several firemen's tests have been made at different sections of the village. Friday evening Hose 2 and the hook and ladder company were called to assist in a trial of the Pacific hand tub. The tub is resplendent in red paint and varnish and her performance that evening fully justified the paint. After two or three trials to see that she was working smoothly the nozzle was pointed from the Square over Odd Fellows' block. With the brakes full of men, a school was thrown some 20 feet above the bridge pole, so that it went clean over the building and wet the roof of the Congregational parsonage.

The new fire escape on Odd Fellows block has been put in place. It is a regulation fire escape with landing red, reached through a door opening from a paragonia room at the northeast corner of the building on the third floor, and through the window next the stage on the north side of the building on the second floor. There are two runs of iron stairs, wide enough for comfortable passage of one person, with treads four inches and a half wide. The lower run of stairs comes within a few feet of the ground and below that there is a short ladder. It looks decidedly more practical than the old ladder escape, though that is to remain to give an additional means of egress.

Dairy Testing Association.

The Waterford Dairy Testing Association held its regular meeting on the evening of June 23d at Grange hall. C. S. Hamlin presided in the absence of President McIntire. Prof. Leon S. Merrill, State instructor, was present. An interesting discussion of the methods of raising but calves for the dairy herd was the feature of the session, in which Frank Shaw gave his experience and methods of weaning and feeding. He said: "I let my heifer calves, selected for raising, suck two or three days, then feed lightly on skim milk, and soon add a small quantity of linseed meal, increasing as the animals require it. I also feed them on hay as soon as they can eat it. I recommend breeding them at 18 months old."

Clayton McIntire said he is very strict in selecting his calves for raising. If they are not very promising, they are marketed for veal when old enough to be sold. The calves he selected for raising, suck two or three days, then removed from the cow and fed 1 1/2 quarts of whole milk mixed with a suitable proportion of skim milk. They are fed a ration of grain, dry, each day. I feed milk up to 10 or 12 months. I do not pasture the first summer at all. My calves are bred so as to "come in" at 2 1/2 to 3 years. Others gave experience in feeding and breeding.

Prof. Merrill speaking with reference to the specific subject of the selection of dairy herds in the future. You will find better herds where men have taken most pains in breeding. It is a good thing, he said, to have calves born in the fall. The records of this association for the first year will, when completed, be held as ideals for future reference and comparison.

Question as to treatment for "scours" in young calves was answered by Mr. McIntire, who said he administers 1/2 teaspoonful of black pepper and cuts down the feed. Mr. McGown uses for this disorder an egg broken into the ration of milk. Prof. Merrill said, feed less, scald their milk and carefully disinfect the pens in which the calves are kept. L. J. Saunders said on point of feeding for thrift and satisfactory growth: Feed not much grain but give the skim milk the calves will eat. Question for discussion at next meeting suggested by Mr. McIntire: Care of milk and milk rooms, also the advisability of feeding grain to cows in summer. Also preventive of flies troubling cows in summer was discussed. Chair appointed Arthur Sanderson and E. K. Kilgore to open debate. The next meeting will be on evening of July 1.

On Tuesday afternoon, while Rev. Dr. Gibbons of Philadelphia, a summer guest of the Lake House, was fishing in a boat in Keoka lake, he was accidentally thrown into the water by the capsizing of the boat near the shore and was in imminent danger of drowning. He saved himself by clinging to the boat, and his cries for help soon brought to his aid Will Heath and another friend, who rescued him from his peril and brought him safely to shore.

The next meeting of Waterford Dairy Testing Association will be held on the evening of July 1, will be attended by Prof. Leon S. Merrill, State instructor, who will be accompanied by Prof. Reuben Williams from Denmark to the country a few years ago. The first testing associations in this section of the State have been organized in conformity to Danish methods. It is very desirable that at our citizens interested in practical improvements in dairying be present at the next meeting, as with the addresses of the expected visitors and other attractions the session will prove of unusual interest to the patrons of the general dairy and art of the dairymen.

Rear Mountain Grange, according to previous announcement, held its first general anniversary in sacred remembrance of its deceased members on Sunday last. About 60 members assembled at 3 o'clock p. m. in the M. E. church, displaying a most interesting and profitable session. J. H. Little of South Paris, officiating as chaplain, introduced his discourse by reading the roll of deceased members since the organization of the Grange 34 years ago, showing that the average life span of the members of the Grange is about 70 years. The roll included many of the most prominent and best esteemed men and women of the last half century in this town. A good number of citizens not affiliated with the Grange manifested their fraternal sympathy with the object of the solemn occasion by their attendance. The discourse of the chaplain was an eloquent review of the lives and services of the departed, and a vivid presentation of the sublime faithfulness and devotion of the laborers in the cause of the Grange. A quartette of singers from the Grange choir rendered several fine selections accompanied by Miss Stone, the organist.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles.

You may have a sample bottle Home of Swamp-Root by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

If you are thinking of buying a new INCUBATOR another season, now is the time to see which make has done the best this year. You will find the "COMPOUNDS" among the leaders.

The Milk Business.

Purchases the Grand Trunk a Profitable Business on Its Passenger Trains.

Few people have any idea of the amount of milk transported every day by the Grand Trunk from Bethel and stations below to Portland. The milk is all carried on passenger trains, most of it on train No. 4, which leaves Gorham during the winter months at 4 o'clock a. m., though a little is carried on the train that follows, No. 6.

Some of the milk is sent from Island Pond, nearly 150 miles, and at times has been shipped from Norton Mills, about 164 miles, but for the most part it is shipped from Bethel and the stations east, Bryant's Pond, West Paris, South Paris, Oxford, Mechanic Falls and almost every station between that place and Portland.

The milk dealers of Portland pay a man to travel on the train on which most of the milk is carried, train No. 4, to keep the consignments received at the different stations sorted so that the various dealers will be able to get their shipments without delay on the arrival of the train in Portland. For this he receives one-half cent on each can of milk handled, and as the quantity runs from 600 to 900 cans every day he gets a very fair wage for his work.

The Grand Trunk gives him transportation, and returns from Portland to Bryant's Pond on train No. 1 each night. The empty cans come on train No. 5, and are put off at the stations from which they were received in the morning.

The cost of transporting the milk is paid by the milk producers. For instance, a milk dealer at Bryant's Pond has ten cans of milk to ship. He goes to the ticket office and buys ten milk tickets at 4 cents each. These tickets are stamped by the ticket agent as any passenger's ticket would be, and each is made up of three coupons, the whole being attached to the can on which transportation is to be paid. These cans of milk are carried in the baggage car, only the conductor is expected to tear off the first coupon and account for it with his passenger tickets to the passenger auditing department. The next coupon is detached by the baggage master in Portland, who accounts for it and sends it in to the office of General Baggage Agent Quick in Montreal. The third coupon is really nothing but a return tag for the empty can, and is left attached to the can.

Of course the price of these tickets varies in proportion to the distance the milk is to be carried. While the rate from Bryant's Pond to Portland is 4 cents a can, from Mechanic Falls to Portland it is 8 cents a can. Probably from Island Pond the rate is more than 4 cents.

Bethel is also quite a milk market and each day receives milk from West Bethel, Bethel and Bryant's Pond. This milk comes up on train No. 3, but is in the hands of the baggage master, the quantity shipped not warranting the employment of a man by the dealers.

Misery Likes Company.

Turf, Farm and Home: One would think to hear the average citizen talk that Maine was the only state in the Union that did not have a perfect system of highways, and a perfect plan of road building was not put into use. For the comfort and assurance of all such let us say, we have seen meaner roads within 40 miles of New York city, in both the state of New York and New Jersey, than we have ever seen in the State of Maine, and we are familiar with some few of the roads in Maine, too.

The great faults with the average poor road in Maine can be grouped under two headings. The first is the want of proper ditching and draining, and the second is the need of supplying worn out materials. Tons and tons of once good road material is ground to powder and blown away during a summer season, leaving the road deficient of every particle of material that should go into the formation of highways. A worn out road has got to be rebuilt with proper material, or you can drain it and plow it and scrape it forever and you never will have a good roadway.

The Greater New England.

A movement is being organized for "A Greater New England" along these lines:—

1. The encouragement of forestry, especially by minimizing the danger of fire, by wise and liberal policy in taxation, supervision of cutting, and by education and expert advice upon the whole subject.

2. The conservation of rivers and lakes, protecting them against pollution, drainage, or waste, utilizing them for power and navigation, pleasure and health; also drainage.

3. In transportation. New England needs a statesman-like policy in dealing with steam railroads and electric railroads. Still more do we require good roads and good care of all highways, and their intelligent use by all vehicles, whether propelled by animals or motors.

Perfect, rapid, cheap transportation and communication are the remotest farm or hamlet and nearby towns or cities is a universal necessity and a common benefit.

4. More uniform legislation by the different states, regarding matters of common interest should come as a gradual evolution.

5. Promote New England agricultural and industrial development—draw hither the best brain and brawn from the rest of the world, and improve our agriculture and rural life, for upon the farm depend town, state and nation. Multiply industries, improve the efficiency of labor, promote domestic and foreign markets for our manufactures.

6. Make the most of New England's geographical, climatic, historical and social advantages—for the tourist and vacationist, as well as for our permanent residents. Make our seashores, mountains, lakes and forests the recreation and health resort of the nation.

7. Aim at working right here in New England a more perfect civilization than the world has yet known.

The governors of the New England states, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut to call conference to consider the larger and better development of New England.

Ben Blessed With Prosperity.

Worcester, Mass., June 8, 1908.

Dear Editor of the Norway ADVERTISER:—By the date of my paper I am reminded that my subscription has expired, and as I cannot afford to get along without the ADVERTISER I am now sending my renewal with this letter.

I can now well appreciate the many letters I have hitherto read in the columns of your paper from those who have removed to distant states, as they write of the eager welcome the ADVERTISER receives. I welcome it as a letter from a life long friend and no item is too small or trivial.

I am sure I read it two or three times, even all the advertisements.

I rejoice at the happy events and at the prosperity of all whom I once knew. I am sad at news of great losses, like that in your last issue, the burning of the old Hunt mansion at Albany. In the days of my childhood my grandmother, who was for some years a housekeeper there, told me many stories connected with it, and it was a pleasure to visit that house in after years and recall the tales that she had told.

I grieve over the loss of old friends separated by death, and anticipated visits can never seem the same by their absence. From the time of my girlhood there has never before been a whole year that I have not written something for the ADVERTISER and if you please to publish my communication I would like to write a few lines to my friends from this beautiful city of adoption.

Nearly two and one-half centuries ago when civilization began to grow westward from the shores of Plymouth, a beautiful valley surrounded by hills, and watered by many brooks, attracted the explorer. Worcester has ever been called "The Heart of the Commonwealth" and ever has prosperity blessed its borders.

There is no corner of the earth into which its sons and daughters have not pushed, and thousands of the graduates of its schools as a higher education are filling positions of trust and honor.

In 1657 the "General Court" made a grant of several thousand acres to Increase Nowell of Charlestown, and in 1697 Captains Daniel Gookin, Edward Johnson and Samuel Andrews were ordered to take an "exact view" of a place ten miles west of Marlboro called Quinsigamond Pond and see if it were capable of making a village.

In 1714 the first Indian deed was given and in that year John Eliot, the missionary, visited the Indians on the hill where now stands the Holy Cross College. In 1775 all the buildings in the little hamlet were destroyed by Indians, and not for 35 years did anyone dare venture into this far off wilderness.

In 1700 Mr. Sergeant (now Sargent) built a small log house, but he was soon killed by the Indians, who were determined to wipe out the white man from the land. In 1713 Jonas Rice came from Boston and cleared a few acres of land. He was friendly with the Indians and they allowed him to remain. In 1715 the first white child, the son of Mr. Rice, was born in Worcester.

For many years several adjoining towns were in advance of this city, but with the coming of steam and the railroad, several roads centered here, and Worcester soon pushed to the front.

Around Lincoln Square hover many associations. Here the first schoolhouse was built and for several years John Adams, the second president of the United States, was teacher. On the opposite corner stood the mansion of Timothy Bigelow, who led the troops to Concord on that memorable April 19, 1775. Here in 1747 the old Salisbury mansion was built, now occupied by the Hancock club, and valued at $50,000. The first church stood for more than a century on the common. Close by are the graves of the first settlers. From the porch of this church the Declaration of Independence was read by Isaiah Thomas for the first time. From the small, primitive village on the Blackstone river, whose population in 1800 had grown to 2,411, has evolved the bustling, bustling city of more than 140,000.

In 1812 the Stowell brothers had a small shop where they made wire, and they had no idea of the future magnitude of this business. The American Steel and Wire Co., of Worcester, is the largest of its kind in the world. It has been often repeated that no other city in the world produces so great a variety of goods.

Worcester was long a center for the stage coaches, being half way between Boston and Springfield. At Lincoln Square stands the old U. S. Arms, a hostelry of great renown, and its present air of faded gentility, and its insignificance among the imposing grandeur of the new buildings on every side seems very pathetic. I never pass the well worn steps and see the ancient door with its antique latch and ponderous brass knocker, without thinking that George Washington had crossed that threshold, and after he had been gone twenty-five years, his true friend Lafayette dined there on his way to lay the corner-stone of Bunker Hill monument.

The court house at Lincoln Square is said to be one of the finest specimens of Greek Architecture. Over its entrance at the suggestion of Senator Hoar are these words, "Obedience to Law is Liberty." A wonderful sentence expressing volumes in these few words. The magnificent marble city hall built in 1878 with its Italian tower is pointed out with pride. The Art Museum and the Post-office are also of marble. The Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. each have commodious buildings. The Woman's club, the Hall of Antiquity, the Odd Fellows' Home are all of noteworthy architecture.

On the hill once owned as the farm of George Bancroft, the father of American History, stands a monument built by late Stephen Salisbury, and dedicated to George Bancroft. From "Bancroft Tower" is a glorious view. The whole city is spread out like a beautiful picture, the spires of its eighty-three churches, the towers of its schools and colleges, the splendor of its many mansions, and tree shaded streets are all seen at one glance, and the sight can never be forgotten.

In no city can be found a superior park system. Just now the parks are most beautiful. Thousands of rhododendrons make them gorgeous with their beauty, and thousands of visitors wander at will in their environments. I have not spoken of many things, all interesting.

A great writer has said that America was another name for Opportunity, and well may this apply to Worcester with its thousands of branches of industry and its cosmopolitan population. Hundreds of Maine people live in its borders, and each year have a dinner together.

I can truly say that though Massachusetts is my home, I no less love the place of my nativity.

Fewer Tumbles for Baby.

We all admired the ingenuity of a mother, on a long overland trip, who secured her baby from falling by pinning her skirts to the seat with large safety pins. In the same way he was pinned to the mattress in the berth and left in absolute safety while the mother attended to her toilet and the wants of an older child. I know I was not the only observer who recalled her own stupidity in piling furniture about the sofa or bed to prevent baby getting a tumble, never thinking of this simpler and better way.

The New Corsets.

A word must be said for the new corsets which are really so very necessary for the correct appearance of the princess gown. They are long, rather high in the bust and very flat in the hips. They have the quality of giving a woman a good figure, whether she has been gifted by nature with one or not.

Of course for the woman of unusual figure it is necessary to get a corset made to order, but the majority of women can be fitted very nicely without going to the expense of employing a private corsetier. Still, for the woman with an out of the way figure a specially made corset is not only a great boon but an actual necessity. The gown sets easily over it without a wrinkle.

Democratic County Convention.

field and Manley A. Brigham of Rumford.

The report of the committee on resolutions was read by T. S. Bridgman.

B. G. McIntire of Waterford stated that two years ago he said that he should not under any consideration be a candidate for sheriff again, but that some men weaken at the wrong time. And that he should accept the nomination, didn't propose to sacrifice himself just for the good of the party but he proposed to be elected. (Cheers.) He spoke of the opportunities of the Democrats in Oxford county. This is a large convention.

I have been here when there were but 18 delegates. The increase in Democratic votes the past few years has been large.

Mr. Kimball stated that there was with us to-day a gentleman who was no stranger and introduced Hon. D. J. McGillicuddy. He was greeted with an overwhelming demonstration.

Mr. McGillicuddy thanked the committee for extending to him an invitation and congratulated the democracy of Oxford county. He stated that he admired the spirit shown in the convention. You are putting before the people candidates in whom the people have absolute confidence, many of them accepting the position with a personal sacrifice to themselves. There are thousands of Republicans who are tired of the hypocrisy.

I was pleased to read Mr. Swasey's speech in the newspapers. I have read it for 30 years. There is an awakening among the rank and file of the people. There is very little difference on these questions in the rank and file of the people. An honest vote is one of the most important things of the day. Every man wants to cast one honest vote, to the best of his judgment.

Mr. McGillicuddy stated that he had a list of the Republican campaign contributions made since 1880 and told what the appropriation had been some of these years. In 1880 it was $100,000; 1884, $125,000 and so on until 1896 when it was $16,500,000. In 1904, $3,500,000.

He told of the tariff which makes America a good deal more here in our own country where they are made than they do in foreign countries. Figures were given illustrating this. The people are completely at the mercy of the trusts. National issues were well covered and explained and State issues were dealt with to some extent.

speaking of Obadiah Gardner as a candidate for Governor he said, "You have a man that is controlled by no manager. The unanimous and spontaneous choice of the Democrats. The choice of the plain people of the State of Maine."

It had been expected that Mr. Gardner would be present at the convention and Mr. McIntire explained that he had talked with him by telephone and found that Mr. Gardner had made a mistake in booking the date of the convention, which was the reason he had not come.

It was voted to authorize the county committee to fill any vacancies in the nominations. F. P. Towne moved for a rising vote of thanks for Mr. McGillicuddy, which was given.

Immediately following adjournment the county committee met and chose B. G. McIntire chairman and W. O. Frothingham, secretary. Other routine business was attended to and a vote of thanks extended to Mr. Kimball for his services as chairman at the convention.

Mr. Kimball stated that there was a gentleman who was no stranger and introduced Hon. D. J. McGillicuddy. He was greeted with an overwhelming demonstration.

Mr. McGillicuddy thanked the committee for extending him an invitation and congratulated the Democracy of Oxford county. He stated that he admired the spirit shown in the convention. You are putting before the people candidates in whom the people have absolute confidence. Many of them accepting the position of sacrifice to themselves. There are thousands of Republicans who are tired of the hypocrisy.

I was pleased to read Mr. Swasey's speech in the newspapers. I have read it for 30 years. There is an awakening among the rank and file of the people. There is very little difference on these questions in the rank and file of the people. An honest vote is one of the most important things of the day. Every man wants to cast an honest vote, to the best of his judgment.

Mr. McGillicuddy stated that he had a list of the Republican campaign contributions made since 1860 and told what the appropriation had been some of these years. In 1860 it was $100,000; 1864, $125,000 and so on until 1896 when it was $16,500,000. In 1904, $3,500,000. He told of the tariff which makes American goods cost a good deal more here than they do in foreign countries. Figures were given illustrating this. The people are completely at the mercy of the trusts. National issues were well explained and State issues were dealt with to some extent.

speaking of Obadiah Gardner as a candidate for Governor he said, "You have a man that is controlled by no manager. The unanimous and spontaneous choice of the Democrats. The choice of the plain people of the State of Maine."

It had been expected that Mr. Gardner would be present at the convention and Mr. McIntire explained that he had talked with him by telephone and found that Mr. Gardner had made a mistake in booking the date of the convention, which was the reason he had not come.

It was voted to authorize the county committee to fill any vacancies in the nominations. F. P. Towne moved for the reading of the thanks for Mr. McGillicuddy, which was given.

Immediately following adjournment the county committee met and chose B. G. McIntire chairman and W. O. Frothingham, secretary. Other routine business was attended to and a vote of thanks extended to Mr. Kimball for his services as chairman at the convention.

An Interesting Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Libby were gone three months and four days on the recent trip to visit their son, John Libby, at Bayfield, Wis. They had not seen him before for 18 years. They also visited at Ashland, Wis., Chicago, Ill., and other places and on their return stopped at Montreal. An interesting part of the trip was a tour around the Apostle Islands in Lake Superior. There are 22 islands in the group and the trip took four days. About these islands many Indians live and here the Americans fought their first battle with the Indians. The fish hatchery at Salome, Wis., was also visited. There was rain 22 days in the month of May. The climate is similar to ours but has more sudden changes.

At Bayfield the wind when blowing from the east blows across 130 miles of water.

Next Sabbath will be observed at the Methodist church as the "Old and Shiny in People's Day." Members and friends of the church are asked to seek out the aged or feeble people and aid them if possible to the church. Old hymns will be sung and the sermon especially for the occasion.

There will be no more services at the Universalist church until the first of September. Rev. Merrill C. Ward of Southbridge, Mass., has been engaged the new pastor to succeed Rev. S. Davis and will begin his duties at the opening of the church in September.
